Dade Kutzera
CSCI 530/430
Sarnath Ramnath
09/05/2026

2. Find all the nouns in the requirements and the business process. Decide which concepts are entities that should be represented in the (conceptual) logical model. Explain why your are choosing these and not the others. (As an example, see section 4.3 in text)

- Client: The Person Who Orders Things From the Warehouse (*)
    - Search For Items
    - Order Items
    - Pays for Items
    - Name/ID (For Storage Purposes of Orders)
- Product: The Item in the Warehouse (*)
    - Name of Item
    - ID of Item (Different then Name, since two Items with the Same Name can be sold by different companies)
    - Price of Item (Sale Price)
    - Quantity of Item (Number in Stock)
- Transactions:
    - History of Clients Transaction with Company
        - Date, Description, Number (dollar amount)
- Wishlist:
    - If a Client wishes to Purchase an item in the future
    - Emails Client if Product Goes On Sale
- Cart:
    - Goes over Wishlists and Asks Client if Product wants to be Ordered,
        - If Yes, Wishlisted Items are added to the Cart
    - Products that are available can be added to the Cart In Order to Be Purchased.
    - If Products are Out of Stock, Let Them Know.
    - Once All Items are in the Cart, Move to Making an Invoice
        - Generate an Invoice with all Items
            - Ask about any shipping cost (expedited, standard, express)
                - Accept Payment for Items
                - Email Client a Receipt of Purchase
- Invoice and Shipping
    - Shipment Details specify product and Quantity
        - Wait-listed Items are filled first
            - Then Stock is Updated
- Quarries
    - To be Processed,
    - Shipped and Received,
    - Outstanding Quarries

- Test Quarries

Example: A Client Goes into the System and adds products to his wishlist, after done shopping, he moves all stuff from Wishlist into Cart. Once he pays for products, an Invoice is Generated to the Warehouse, telling them what they need to grab to fulfill the order. After the order is fulfilled, it is shipped out to the Client. Note, with the shipment comes an invoice of all items shipped to the Client, to allow for them to note what still needs to come (any stuff on backorder).
Company Also needs a copy for themselves in order to keep history of what they still have in stock and in the client wants to order again, having that history of repeated products makes delivery and shipping smoother.

Nouns Included: Client, Product, Wishlist, Cart, Transaction, Shipping, Warehouse, History/Receipt, Invoice